- Przemysław Krych, Founder, Cornerstone Investment Management and Griffin Real Estate [video]

10.00 a.m. – 11.30 a.m.

Summarizing the pandemic – gains and losses. The Polish market of commercial properties

Poland's industrial and logistics sector was least severely hit by the pandemic. It was ranked third among Europe's most active sectors and –together with Germany and the United Kingdom –in 2020 its rented surfaces amounted to 3 million metres square. As the Polish warehousing market is flourishing, we are presenting the latest data on its condition. We ask experts, developers and investors about the future of the sector.

The discussion, which were invited to participate (alphabetic order):

- Hadley Dean, Founder, MDC² [online]
- Robert Dobrzycki, CEO, Panattoni Europe
- Renata Kinde-Czyż, President, Metro Properties

Pandemic as a breakthrough for the market of offices

2020 marked a decrease in investors and developers' interest in office blocks. Suspended investment programmes, less active developers, a decrease in demand, a higher percentage of vacant buildings – such was a reaction of the sector to the pandemic and remote work. Today the market believes in a revival and with the beginning of 2021 came signs of recovery. The industry is bracing itself for the new post-pandemic reality. But what is it going to be like?

Why Pomeranian Voivodeship? What challenges have to be overcome to increase the region's investment attractiveness even more?

1-on-1 conversation:

- Agnieszka Rodak, President, Rumia Invest Park, Invest in Pomerania initiative

1.55 a.m. – 2.45p.m.

Poland's investment attractiveness in the new reality

The pandemic has brought about a global drop in the number of FDI projects. We have seen the uncertainty of investors, delayed or abandoned enterprises. Statistically, Poland proved to be "covid-resistant" and fDi Markets recognized it to be the third most attractive market for foreign investments in the world. Will Poland maintain its investment attractiveness after the pandemic? Will we join the club of beneficiaries of post-pandemic investments? How to maintain a strong position of an investment hub attractive for global companies investing in shared services centres, IT centres or research and development facilities? How to benefit from nearshoring? What does that mean for the real estate market? Promotion, pro-investment solutions, tax reliefs, and a social-economic stability as prerequisites for economic growth.
